in a recent study, williams incubated human musculoskeletal cells with differing strengths of cipro and found that the cells made destructive enzymes in response to the drug